The Department of Mathematics of the University of Oregon is a Tier I research department with internationally recognized research groups in Algebra, Analysis, Topology, Geometry and Probability/Statistics. The Department has a strong and vibrant PhD program with about 50 students.

The University of Oregon is located in Eugene, Oregon, home to more than 145,000 people and Oregon's third largest city. Within only a few hours' drive are the ocean beaches, lakes, rivers, forests, high desert, and the Cascade and Coast mountain ranges. The Willamette River runs through the heart of the city and joins the McKenzie River north of town. Mild winters, long growing seasons and few drastic weather changes are characteristic. Eugene has a high percentage of professionals, including doctors, lawyers, architects, and educators, and is home to the Hult Center for the Performing Arts, which regularly hosts the Oregon Bach Festival, the Eugene Symphony, the Eugene Ballet, and the Eugene Opera, among other cultural offerings.

Candidates should have the ability to work effectively with a diverse community. The University of Oregon is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action institution committed to cultural diversity and compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act.
